

A U.S. Marshal had
to take her to the school to make sure
she was safe.

After her husband
died, she worked
washing clothes
for others.

Mary wanted to go
to school, but there
wasn't a school she could go to.

As she grew up, life
was much harder
and she had to
help pick cotton.
