George Washington
was the first president of the United States.

He worked hard on the farm as a boy.

He also worked as a

surveyor, measuring and mapping the land.

George loved
riding horses.

When he was twenty,
he became a major in the Virginia militia.

He was elected to

lead the army before

the Declaration of Independence was signed.

On Christmas night in 1776, he led his men
across the Delaware River in a surprise
attack.

Stories say Betsy Ross
was asked to make the first flag for the new nation in 1776.

The nation's first flag
had thirteen stripes
and thirteen stars.

George Washington
led a group of
delegates to the Constitutional Convention.

George and Martha
Washington spent
much time talking
with people after he became president.

He made many speeches about what was going on in the new government.

George Washington

became known as the "Father of

His Country."

George's wife Martha
was the nation's very first First Lady.

George Washington

treasured his own copy of the Constitution

and the Bill of Rights.

Mount Vernon was

Washington's home in Virginia, and he visited often.

Men in his day
wore hats and
powdered wigs.

The Liberty Bell

reminds us of the brave people who fought to build a

free nation.

The nation honored
George Washington
by putting his picture
on its money.

George Washington is also honored in the carving on Mount Rushmore.

The Washington Monument was named after the first president.
