Many people
lost everything
when the stock market crashed.

When people could not repay their loans, banks closed.

Men would stand in long lines trying to get jobs, or . . .

waiting to get food
at the soup kitchens
so their families had something to eat.

People tried all sorts of jobs to try to pay their bills.

Men with families
sometimes wore signs
to let people know
they wanted to work.

When people lost their homes, they made shelters
wherever they could.

When terrible dust
storms hit areas of farmland, the people
lost everything.

Farmers would often
sell their land and live in tents until they could find work.

Many of the farmers moved away
to look for work.

Sometimes people
would travel from place to place
looking for work.

When shoes wore
out, there wasn't enough money to buy new ones.

Some hoped

President Franklin D.

Roosevelt could find ways to help people survive.

The WPA helped make jobs for many people.
