

Instructions for Clip Cards

Clip cards are a fun way to practice counting. You can use these holiday sets to help students practice counting from one to twenty. First, print the clip cards. They will hold up longer if they are printed on card stock and laminated, but they will work just as well if they are printed on paper.

After you've printed them, cut the cards out on the dark lines. There are four clip cards on each page, so be careful to cut the card that has the pictures and the numbers beneath it together as one card. There are twenty cards per holiday in this set (five pages of four clip cards each). You can work with just one holiday or mix all three holidays together. If you mix them together, you can use them to review the holidays, too.

Give the student one clip card and a clothespin. Have the student count the number of pictures on the top of the card and clip the clothespin on the corresponding number.

Another activity you can use the clip cards in is practicing numerical order. Give the student all the clip cards from one holiday and enough clothespins to count the pictures on all of the cards. When they are finished, they can line the clip cards up in numerical order.
