

They headed into the Great Plains
where they met the Sioux Indians.

From there, they built and wintered at Fort Mandan near what is now Bismarck, North Dakota.

It was near the camps of the

Mandan and Hidatsa peoples.

There they met Sacagawea, a Shoshone Indian.
